

Abstract

A method and system is disclosed for receiving data transmissions between consumers and operator call centers and monitoring the performance of the call centers in handling the consumers' inquiries. The performance of each of the call centers may then 5 be reported to consumers, or other third parties, in a variety of formats.